Application No. 10/716,884                                    Customer No. 01933
Response to Office Action

Please delete the abstract on page 53 and add the following new abstract:

ABSTRACT

In a portable communication terminal, communication logs, including items of contact address information corresponding to data transmitted and received by the communication terminal, are selectively displayed.  In addition, items of contact address information stored in an address book data memory may be associated with items of image data stored in an image memory via links stored in a link memory.  When one of the communication logs is displayed, an instruction may be input to display the items of contact address information in the displayed communication log together with images.  If the instruction is issued, the link memory is referred to to determine whether any of the displayed items of contact address information is linked to any item of image data, and if a linked item of image data is found, the image data is displayed together with the corresponding item of contact address information in the displayed communication log list.

-4-